Intrex

Intrex

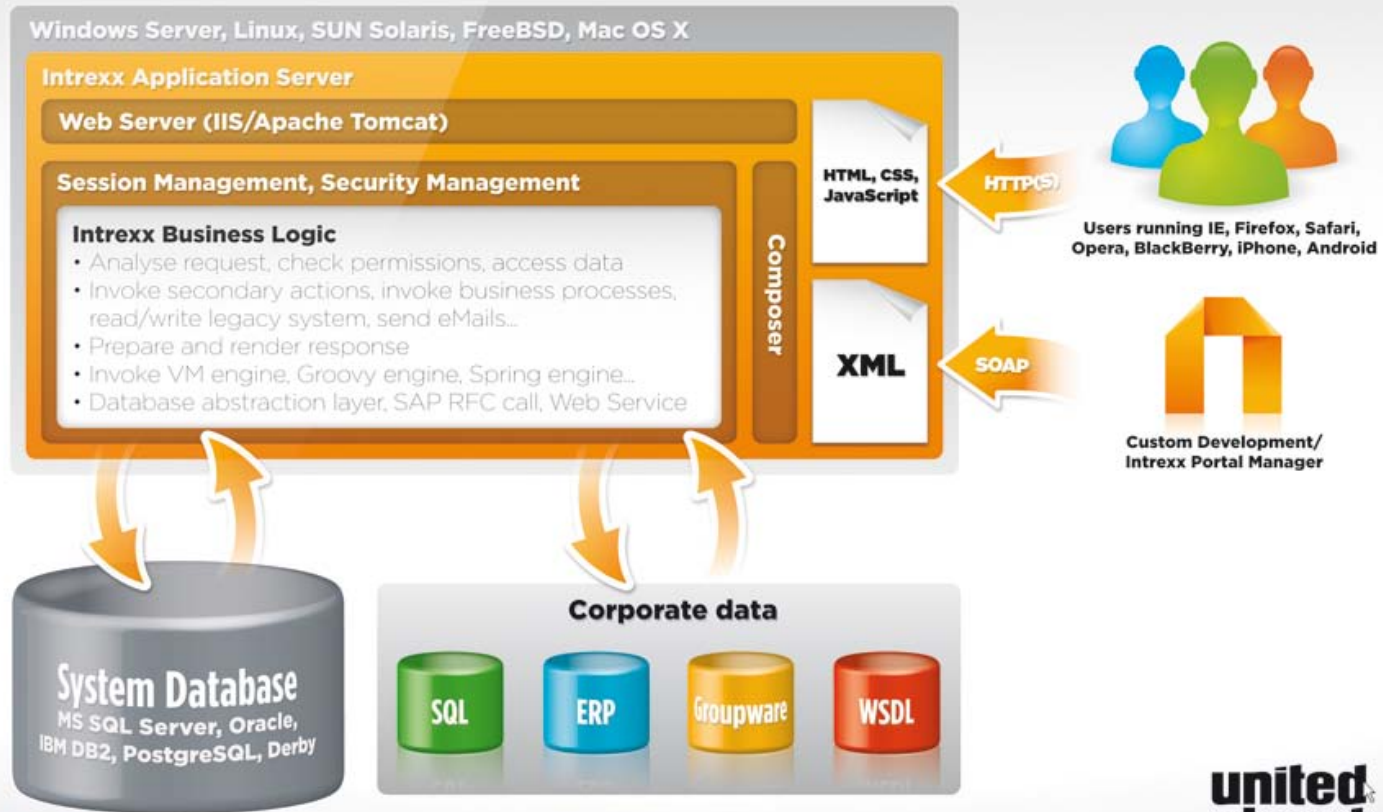

- model-based development of portal applications and portals
- >>1M users, some thousand customers
- first release in 1998, current release 5.1
- powerful tools for system- and data-integration
- based on industry standards

Established software which uses industry standards

Architecture

Intrex 5 Architecture Overview

Trend-setting approach

- Principle: „Assembling“ software rather than „programming“ - an application consists of various „building blocks“
- Effective building blocks (e.g. form input fields, powerful search fields, table-based and graphical data representation) permit very rapid development
- Expandable „tool box“
(via Java/XML and related technologies)
- Supports creating rapid prototypes to quickly visualize the specification

Achieve individuality using standard software and a standard platform

Intrrex Project Management

Most projects fail when one loses their perspective. But also a failure in communication between all concerned can be a common reason, completely apart from the wasted time spent looking for documents. What use is it if a project is successful, if it has financially run out of control? One has then only earned the customer. All the more important is the daily bookkeeping, and that begins with the recording of work times. However, that is for many too cumbersome. The Studio solution "Project Management" allows you track unlimited projects and provides transparent communication. The times for the execution of individual tasks can be recorded with the click of a mouse. Many complete reports can be called up with a mouse click as well – and all that in the browser.
